Mr. R. F. Cook, lately of the Lowell, Mass., base ball club, is in the city, with a view to remaining if he can make arrangements. Mr. C. has very creditable endorsements from Messrs. George and Harry Wright, whose judgment in base ball matters is unexcelled. We hope Mr. Cook will tarry here, that the Westerns may profit by his skill.

Dr. Henry Colt Receives Souvenir from a Former Pittsfield Man

Dr. Henry Colt is the possessor of a book presented pictures of the members of the Lowell baseball club of 1877. The book was a gift of R. H. W. Dwight, formerly of this city. The book is of unusual interest to the followers of baseball in the '70's.

BASE BALL.

A base ball club was permanently organized this week which promises during the coming season to retrieve some of the laurels Kansas City has lost at the hands of visiting clubs. The nine is composed of several league men and a number of well known Kansas City ball tossers. Arrangements are pending to secure the services of the well known player, Sullivan, who formerly occupied the position of catcher for the St. Louis reserves. The new club is composed of such men as C. F. Jones, who will act as catcher until the arrival of Sullivan; Hutchison, pitcher; Babcock, short stop; Graham, first base; R. F. Cook, second base; Nelson, third base; Donaldson, left field; I. F. Rogers, center field, and Smith right field. These players are well known, and have made good records inside the diamond. R. F. Cook, the second baseman, played in the league in 1879, and has been a member of the Boston and Lowell, Mass., nines. He carries a flattering recommendation from Geo. Wright, manager of the Boston nine. Babcock, who occupies the Cook-Lamb.

 Mr. R. F. Cook, Agent of the Lake Shore fast-freight line at Kansas City, and Miss Anna Lamb, were quietly married yesterday noon, at the residence of the bride's mother, on Jefferson street. Dr. F. S. McCabe performed the ceremony. Only the family friends were present. Mr. Cook and his bride left for Omaha on the afternoon train, where they will spend the holidays with a brother of his.
