The Corn Palace Nine Beat the Aurelias Sunday—A Good Game.

The match game of base ball at Evans' driving park last Sunday afternoon between the Aurelia and Corn Palace nines was quite closely contested. In fact, it was a very pretty game. The visiting nine had some excellent players, but they made a common error with players away from home—kicked on the umpire's rulings. The game was as follows:

 * A Corn Palace base ball club has been organized that looks as though it had monopolized the best base ball material in the city. The nine is thus arranged: J. J. Jordan, second base; E. Kirby, left field; C. M. Couch, center field; John Carter, catcher; T. L. Brennan, right field; James Carroll, short stop; T. Gearen, pitcher; E. J. Hamlin, third base; T. Balzer, first base. As soon as the sod is in condition the Corn Palace wants to hear from the base ball artists of the city.

of the home team outside of the record made by Sneed and Genins. The last named Corn Husker made three base hits out of four times at bat, stole four bases, and gathered in four elegant drives to his territory. Sneed did good work in right and showed himself to be a good base runner. He had the misfortune of being twice left on bases. Barnes, the Sioux City Corn Palace catcher, did not understand the points of the game and his throwing to second was a pitiable failure. The hoodoo in the box was pounded out of shape whenever there seemed a necessity, and had it not been for the prompt work of the field on several occasions he would have been mashed out of reputation.

The Milwaukee nine played with confident ease after the first inning and Barnes of Sioux City.

Sioux City Exchange, 26: Barnes, who catches today for the Sioux City nine, makes his first appearance as a professional base ballist. He has done some admirable work with the Corn Palace nine, and it is to be hoped that he has not overestimated his own ability and that he will be signed by manager Bryan as a recognition of his merit.

Same, 27: As for Mr. Barnes—Mr. Barnes of Sioux City, who played his first engagement yesterday with a professional nine—his record after the first inning was creditable, and he ties his opponent on put-outs.

If this is our old friend Barnes, who played with the Mitchell boys last season, Sioux City has secured a prize. Barnes is a ball-player.

BASE BALL.

The Game Yesterday—Tomorrow's Contest.

There was quite a crowd of spectators at the ball grounds, yesterday, to witness the first appearance of the Mitchell boys at home, to try conclusions with the Plankinton club. The game started off in a discouraging fashion for the home team, but they found the ball later on and did some heavy slugging. Catcher Barnes beat the record with two home runs, and the score shows that some of the others used the stick with marked effect. Ed. Ewing did himself proud in right field and afterward stood up behind

A peculiar feature of the game was that no man went to first on balls although Barnes got there by being hit by the pitcher.
R. M. Dott, of Alexandria acted as umpire, and although he made several close decisions, they were pretty evenly divided, and his work was in the main satisfactory to everybody. The umpire's position is a thankless one at best, and when a ball player and a gentleman like Dott does the best he can, you may be sure of square work. "Bud" Barnes received a telegram yesterday, which contained the sad intelligence of the death of his brother, A. G. Barnes, jr., in Salt Lake City. This news will be a shock to "Ned" Barnes' many friends in this city. He lived here several years and had a host of friends and acquaintances. His death was due to a hemorrhage of the lungs. About five years ago "Ned" left here and went to Salt Lake City, Utah, where he had been employed up until his immediate sickness, in the ticket department of the Union Pacific. At the time of his death he was thirty years of age. A mother and two

Barnes bouncing between Monmouth and Joliet in 1890, probably William Barnes

Barnes, William David (1867 - 1938)

William D. Barnes was born in Irwin, Pennsylvania in March of 1868 to John and Mary (Speer) Barnes. Shortly after his birth, the Barnes family moved to Blue Grass, Iowa and William attended the country school adjacent to his parent's farm (Ancestry.com 2015, Barnes 1950, The Bend Bulletin 1938). He completed his high school education at the Northwestern University Academy (Evanston, Illinois), then finished his undergraduate degree (A.B.) at Northwestern University in 1891, with a major in Greek and Latin. While at Northwestern, he became an accomplished baseball player for the college and even played for the Chicago White Sox and Boston Red Sox during summer vacations (Anonymous 1891a&b, Barnes 1950, Guldner 1950, Sawyer 1916).

William went on to complete some graduate work in Greek (1892-1893) and botany (1893-1894) at Northwestern University (Atwell 1903, Barnes 1950) and followed that with graduate studies at Harvard University (Wiggin 1892). Barnes was evidently preparing to engage in archeological research in Egypt, when both his father and brother fell ill and perished. William returned to Iowa to help his mother maintain the family farm (Baird & Brown 1905, Barnes 1950, Halligan 1896, Sawyer 1916).

William and his mother worked the Iowa farm, until about 1903, when they sold the parcel and moved to Walla Walla, Washington, which was apparently the home of his sister, Agnes George (Russel 1938, Barnes 1950). Barnes held a position at Whitman College where he taught Greek (Guldner 1950) and coached baseball (Statesman Publishing 1904a&b). In 1904 he moved to the vicinity of present-day Tumalo, Oregon with a fellow named C.W. Allen. Barnes homesteaded on a parcel along the Deschutes River and established the White Rock cattle ranch. His homestead was situated within an area that was formally designated as Deschutes County in December of 1916 and Barnes was appointed the first Deschutes county judge (in spite of the fact that he'd only completed one class in constitutional law, while a student (Guldner 1950)).

In July of 1918, he and Cornelia Wilson were married in Bend, Oregon (Barnes 1950, Guldner 1950, Sawyer 1938) and the couple had two children, William D. and Mary Jean (Russel 1938). Judge Barnes perished from influenza in February 1938 and was interred in the Mountain View Cemetery in Ashland, Oregon (Russel 1938, ProgBase 2011, Sawyer 1938).

According to his wife, for the dozen or so years prior to his move to Washington, William and Alonzo A. Miller rode bicycles throughout the Scott/Muscatine county region collecting representative plants of the region's flora (Barnes 1950). Those collecting forays are documented by 450-plus plant specimens in the Putnam Museum herbarium and others available through the iDigBio and SEINet specimen databases that bear William D. Barnes' name as collector or co-collector. Those collections led to Barnes' most significant botanical contribution, "The flora of Scott and Muscatine Counties", which he authored with F. Reppert and Alonzo A. Miller (Barnes et al. 1900). Barnes is also mentioned by E.J. Hill (1899) "Mr. William D. Barnes of Morgan Park, Illinois has placed in my hands specimens of an undetermined oak, collected by him at Big Rock, Scott county, Iowa, which proves to be Q. ellipsoidalis Hill. ... E.J. to play ball Saturday.

Saturday afternoon the Trinity Whites, of Davenport, Iowa, came out and gave the Blue Grass club a friendly game of ball on the Blue Grass diamond. Between one and two hundred people witnessed the game, which was the closest and most exciting game ever played here. Mr. Ed. James acted as umpire, and did fairly well, although making one bad decision in the seventh inning, which was very costly for the Blue Grass boys. He called a foul tip a strike, which by rights made the third man out, after which the Whites ran in four, otherwise Blue Grass would have won by 10 to 7. As it was, the Whites won by a score of 11 to 10 in the tenth inning, on a dropped fly by Blue Grass' left fielder. Better luck next time. Berryhill and Cook were the Whites battery and J. Barnes and W. D. Barnes were the Blue Grass battery.
