A Good Game Promised. To-day a game of ball will be played at the Chateaugay ball park between the St. Paul Reserves and St. Paul Favorites. As these clubs are the strongest amateur organizations in the city, and the fact that of three games played each club has won one, the third being a twelve inning tie game, and the series being for $100 a side and the championship of the city, a good game will probably result. Vogel is not a professional pitcher and has his reputation to make. He is a St. Paul boy, and his townsmen are anxious to see him prove a wonder. PITCHER VOGEL.

Peter Vogel, who will occupy the box a portion of the time for the home club during the coming season, enjoys the distinction of being the only St. Paul boy in the team. He is a tall, strapping young fellow, six feet in height and twenty-three years of age. He was born in St. Paul and commenced ball playing when a mere boy. He first attracted attention as a "twirler" in the Reserves, an amateur club of this city, which never suffered a defeat, although it competed with many of the strongest clubs throughout the state. This will be his first year as a professional pitcher, and if he doesn't do well it will be from nervousness or lack of confidence. He has excellent command of the ball and never loses his head. Though he makes use of all the curves, his most effective and deceptive ball is a quick "in-shoot," which has caused many a slugger to retire to his seat after fanning ferociously the gentle zephyrs. Vogel is not a heavy batter, but rather what is called a safe hitter. He will also hold his own in base running. His friends, who are legion in this city, are expecting big things from him this season.

BLOOMINGTON, Ill., April 11.—A large attendance witnessed the opening of the base ball season on muddy grounds and between April showers, and saw St. Paul take Bloomington into camp by a score of 11 to 2. It was the first time the local team had played together, and for seven innings they put up a stiff game, revealing enthusiasm, but in the eighth there was an unfortunate change of batteries, and the nine immediately went to pieces, heavy slugging, aided by errors, netting the visitors seven runs. Johnnie Sowers' south paw, which foiled Bloomington last year, was doing business at the old stand, but one hit, a two-bagger, being made off him. He gave way to Vogel in the ninth, owing to a lame arm. Following is the score:

DAVENPORT, Ia., April 13.—The second exhibition game of the Davenport club, of the Interstate league, with the St. Paul club, of the Western association, was played to-day. Davenport went first to bat. The battery of the Davenporters was Crump and Crossley, and that of St. Paul Vogel and Krennler, which was changed to Yeech and Krennler in the middle of the first inning on account of Vogel's wild pitching. A fair crowd witnessed the game. When Krennler, of the St. Pauls, stepped to the bat he received a grand ovation. He was a member of the Davenport nine of 1878 and 1879, and there were hundreds in the amphitheater who had witnessed his playing in Davenport during the halcyon days of base ball here. The home team scored 3 in the first inning on account of Vogel's wild pitching, while St. Paul scored the same by reckless playing and bad errors by the Davenporters. In the second inning errors of McSorley and Crossley in handling base hits made by Murphy and Shaffer gave the St. Pauls 4 tallies. Reckless playing on the part of both clubs characterized the game throughout. One of the regular pitchers of the home team, Malms, who was to have pitched to-day, could not on account of illness, and the amateur, Crump, was put in in his place. The St. Pauls leave to-night for Omaha. Score:

played.

On Tuesday two more of the players signed by Manager Barnes reached this city. These were Henry Miller and Fred Jevne. When complete the Spokane club will be made up as follows:

First base—Ed. Fitzgerald, of Indianapolis, a former player in national clubs.

Second base—Clarence Cross, one of the best players of the St. Paul team.

Third base—M. Lynch, a crack base ballist of Minneapolis.

Shortstop—Henry Miller, of the inter-state league.

Pitchers—Robert Emmerke, of the inter-state league; Gus Cloph, the pride of the St. Joe club; Pete Vogel, an amateur from St. Paul, who has the ability to develop into a fine twirler.

Catchers—E. L. Mills, who for three years was a member of the Minneapolis club; Billy Colgan, a man well known in the east.

Right field—Thomas Turner, from Minneapolis.

Left field—Ed. Mullaly, well known to the national league mag-nates.

Center field—Fred. Jevne, who has played in the national league and in nearly every minor league in the country. He was a member of the Oakland, Cal., club a few seasons back, and made a very good impres-sion.

REGARDING VOGEL'S RELEASE.

Manager Barnes Fills His Place With McCormick, a Better Pitcher.

About a week since Manager Barnes, of the Spokane team, released Pitcher Vogel and signed McCormick in his stead. Vogel arrived in this city from the sound yesterday and the following appeared in print last evening:

“Will Mr. Barnes please explain why Vogel has been released? He having played under you in St. Paul in 1888, did you not know what he was capable of doing when you signed him for the Spokane team? Did he not (at your request) give up a position with the St. Paul team this year in order to play with the Spokanes? And why have you not given him the chance that he deserved? Vogel pitched in two games and won each of them, and deserves credit for what he has done, and should have had a better opportunity to display his qualities, but instead he has been kept on the players' bench. Why was this? Why do you want Vogel to remain at Spokane at his own expense and without salary? Is there something back of this action on your part? And how about the much talked of release of Colgan? Will the papers ever reach Nick Young, so that he may decide on Jevne's case, or will you see that they never reach Mr. Young? Will Mr. Barnes please explain?”

“KRANK.”

Manager Barnes has ample reason for releasing Vogel. The latter was a very weak pitcher. He was not needed with Emmerke, Klopf and McCormick, all better pitchers than himself. True, Vogel did pitch in two games which the Spokanes won, but it was not by any remarkable work on his part. When Manager Barnes signed Vogel he did not think he would need any one better, but finding that the other clubs were signing good batteries, he was compelled to strengthen his own. Vogel is a good fellow personally and should not feel hurt over being released. The contract he signed gives his manager the right to release him whenever he chooses.

Vogel never played for Barnes in 1888. In fact he never played in a professional club until he signed with the Spokanes. When a player permits himself to be signed for a certain position on a league team there is an implied warranty on his part that he is able to fill the position. Vogel's reputation as an amateur pitcher is excellent, and it was on account of his good work on the St. Paul amateur team that Manager Barnes consented to give him a trial.

What the directors of the Spokane Baseball club and the citizens generally expect of Manager Barnes is that he will secure a team capable of sustaining the reputation of this city. It is unfortunate that a manager be compelled to release a member of his team, and no doubt Manager Barnes regrets the necessity of releasing Vogel worse than any one else. The managers of the Portland and Seattle clubs respectively have released already three and four men each, while Manager Barnes has only released one. Vogel has had his expenses paid to this country, his salary in full and ought to be able to take care of himself. If this is not the case he only needs to make his wants known to the Spokane baseball club and the citizens generally, and he will be taken care of.

Regarding the “talked of release of Colgan” all that can be said is that the proposition is absurd. There has never been any such talk and Manager Barnes has the interests of his own club at heart too much to release such a valuable man. He would be immediately gobbed up by some other club in the league.

The insinuation that Manager Barnes may be instrumental in holding back the papers in the Jevne case is laughable. Manager Barnes has no more to do with the sending of those papers East than Vogel himself. At the meeting of the league at Seattle recently the directors instructed Secretary C. E. Maxfield to forward the papers to Nick Young, and the latter has most likely done so ere this. Secretary Maxfield has no voice in the matter whatever, he having his instructions.

THEIR LAST HOME GAME.

It Is One of the Best Contested of the Series.

It took but an hour and twenty-five minutes to play the game yesterday afternoon, and the contest was one of the prettiest ever seen in St. Paul. But nine hits were made in the game, six by St. Paul and three by Milwaukee, and not more than one was made by either team in any inning. With perfect fielding but one run would have been scored, that by Campion in the fourth inning. Outside of the work of O'Rourke at third the fielding was superb. The visiting team, however, had the greater luck. Pettit caught Laroque's fly not six inches from the ground in the fourth inning. Hamburg lined one to Dalrymple in the seventh, which if hit a foot either side of him, would have been good for two bases and Burke cut off a three-base hit by Conley in the eighth by jumping the air and taking the ball with one hand. Thus the work went on, the Milwaukee outfield taking eleven flies during the game. One of the three hits made by the Brewers was not really a hit at all, being simply credited under the rules. With two men out in the seventh Earl hit a grounder to short, which would have been an easy out, but Shoeh, running from second, got his feet tangled up in it and was called out. The scoring began in the third inning, when Smith led off with a single, Burke secured a base on balls and Pettit sacrificed the runners along a base each. Shoeh reached first on balls, and the bases were full. Dalrymple dropped a short fly to right on which nobody was able to score. Earl hit a line fly to O'Rourke, who let the ball slip through his hands and two men scored. Campion opened the next inning with a three-sack drive to center field and scored on Burke's long fly to center. The St. Paul team left for Sioux City last night. The score follows:

STOUC CITY, Iowa, June 11.—[Special.]—Today's game between the St. Paul team and the Huskers was a dandy from a Sioux City standpoint. The feature of the contest was the tremendous slugging done by the home team. Vogel put up a good game, but there was no getting away from the Indians stick work. Only the liveliest kind of work in the outfield saved the Saints from being snowed under entirely. Moakin went into the box with a sore arm, but threw a very good game. He is nery and plays the

The weather yesterday robbed Minneapolis of an easy victory over St. Paul. Rain began to fall as St. Paul went to bat in the second inning. After 15 minutes it ceased, but began falling after Treadway and Hengle had been to bat in the fourth. It came down in torrents and that settled all prospects of a game. A change was made by Manager Harrington, Hengle going to second, Ward to first and Minnehan to right field. Duke and Vogel were opposing pitchers, and in the three innings Duke struck out eight men and assisted in the other out. Vogel was touched up hard. In the first inning Ward made a hit and stole second and third, but was left. In the second inning Minnehan reached first on balls, but
