

Ed Warner

Milwaukee 1888

Death Of Ex-Catcher E. H. Warner.
Edward H. Warner, the baseball catcher, died yesterday afternoon at his home, 1306 North Stricker street, of consumption. He was ill several months. Warner was thirty-five years old and a native of Baltimore.

He first played ball professionally with the "Our Boys" club, of this city, catching pitcher Frank Horner, the two playing together many years, being known as the Horner-Warner pony battery. The first out-of-town club to employ the pony battery was that in Norfolk, with which they played two seasons. They next went to Rochester for two seasons, and then to the Hamiltons of Canada for one season. They spent a season each with Milwaukee, St. Paul and Fort Wayne and two seasons with New Haven, in the Eastern League.

Before going to New Haven Edward Warner married Miss Jennie Whitter, of Baltimore. In his last year at New Haven his arm failed him. This was seven years ago, and he had not played since. He came to Baltimore and went into business here as a carpenter. Horner played for a short time with the Baltimore Club, but is now clerk in a New York hotel. Mr. Warner leaves a widow and two small children. He was a member of Gem Lodge, of the Shield of Honor, and the Workingmen's Mutual Beneficial Association.
